LISS & MARION: YOUR LAWYERS – READY TO HELP YOU!

More than 20 years ago, Tom was involved in a motor vehicle collision while at work. At that time, he retained Ricky Liss who successfully negotiated a confidential settlement that exceeded One Million Dollars. Liss also helped Tom settle his workers' compensation case and obtain Social Security Disability benefits.

This year, Tom contacted Mr. Liss regarding a dispute with his neighbor. As a courtesy to Tom, Mr. Liss resolved the case, helped Tom to manage his on-going medical care, and wrote a Will and Power of Attorney for Tom's future needs.

Liss & Marion values its client relationships and works hard to get the best results for its clients. Other lawyers may make promises but don't deliver service. Beware of attorney advertisements that are often misleading. Consider the following:

1. One Philadelphia law firm is the biggest television advertiser in this area. Last year, in official court documents, the law firm admitted that the majority of clients who select personal injury attorneys based upon its advertisements are "unsophisticated and often times minimally educated."
2. Another firm's television marketing claims to be a "family law firm." A Philadelphia man recently telephoned the firm but, unbeknownst to the client, he was speaking with someone at a "call center" in Florida. This "family law firm" was simply a referral service to local attorneys who paid a fee to the advertiser. Nobody cared about the client or the quality of his representation.
3. A local woman recently hired a firm based upon a very professional television advertisement. She soon learned that the attorney on T.V. did not actually handle any cases at all. Instead, she was handed off to others who did not return her phone calls and could not answer her questions. On one telephone call, the attorney who was "handling" the case did not even know who the client was or anything about her case.

Don't be fooled by television ads. When you contact Liss & Marion, you will always speak with our attorneys and staff who not only will know you and your case but also will fight to get you maximum compensation for your injuries. Don't be deceived by attorneys who advertise. At Liss & Marion, our best "advertising" comes from our clients and friends who tell others about us. We care about our clients and get them top dollar for their injuries!
