WHAT TO DO AFTER A FALL

Liss & Marion has recovered millions of dollars for clients who have suffered injuries due to falls. Injured victims are entitled to compensation from businesses and property owners for uneven pavements, icy conditions, slippery wet floors, and other hazards on walking surfaces or stairs. According to the National Safety Counsel, approximately nine million people in the United States require emergency room care each year for treatment of injuries suffered in a slip, trip or other fall down accident.

If you or someone you know suffers injury from a fall, consider the following:

1. If possible, take lots of photographs of the hazard that caused the fall. Show the area from various angles and distances. This is important to preserve evidence if the property owner cleans or repairs the hazard.
2. Get the name and contact information of any witness.
3. Promptly report the incident to the business and/or property owner.
4. Do not sign any statements or documents. Do not give a recorded telephone or other statement to anyone.
5. Contact Liss & Marion as soon as possible so that your attorneys can begin an investigation and properly document your claim.

UNEXPECTED INJURIES - EXCELLENT RECOVERIES

Sometimes our family and friends suffer unexpected and unfortunate injuries. Although each accident involves different facts and circumstances, clients who promptly contact Liss & Marion stand the best chance to maximize their compensation. Recently, Liss & Marion helped clients recover top dollar in the following cases:

- $473,500 recovered at Trial for a carwash employee who suffered a wrist injury when he tripped and fell due to a hazard in his employer's basement. The client also received an additional $97,350 of workers' compensation benefits.
- $335,000 recovery - the maximum insurance policy limits - for a Bucks County truck driver who suffered a wrist injury in a collision.
- $437,500 settlement just before Trial against the City of Philadelphia and a police officer whose vehicle struck a pedestrian.
- Over $300,000 recovered in a Federal Court Trial and workers' compensation case for a woman who tripped and fell in the parking lot of a Lehigh County hotel.
- $200,000 settlement just before Trial for a Chester County man who injured his shoulder when he was attacked by his neighbor's dog.
